PA NEWC OBSERVES

Pedestrians walking along Washington street early yesterday afternoon imagined a big fire was in progress in Apple Alley. Dense clouds of white smoke, rolled up the alley between the buildings, which was intensified by the bright sun shining on the smoke clouds. An investigation revealed that someone was burning the carbon out of a car down the alley, causing a heavy cloud of smoke to arise.

Hunters were out in the woods in force today. It would appear from the large number noted enroute to the county district, armed with guns and equipped with hunting paraphernalia.

With the number of hold-ups and robberies being reported in this city and vicinity it would be wise for all to exercise more precautions than in ordinary times to guard against robberies. Don't carry any large sums of money, and don't leave any valuables in your home that are easily taken by sneak thieves.

Early Christmas shopping is getting under way in New Castle and Lawrence County. Business will receive considerable of a stimulus during the next few weeks due to the approach of the holidays.

Snow fences are being put up out along the Enon Valley highway. Some of the fence has been set up, the rest is laying there ready to be put up. Pa Newc observed.

Friday being a nice day, Pa Newc observed many housewives busy cleaning windows on the exterior.

Did you notice the queer appearance of the eastern skies this morning? It was a sort of a buttermilk design and rather attractive.

Pa Newc didn't hear the chiming of the First Methodist church at noon today. Wonder if they are out of order?

There certainly was little chance of any pedestrian in the downtown district being overlooked by the girls selling poppies today. There was a large number of the girls selling the poppies, groups being noted at almost every important corner.

Pa Newc is of the opinion that the lights in the clock on the First Christian church should be made a little stronger, in order to get the best effect in the city.

HUGE AMOUNT OF LIQUOR SEIZED

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—With sixteen persons, one a woman already under arrest, deputy United States Marshals and custom agents swept through Manhattan, Brooklyn, Nassau County and northern New Jersey today in a round up of some fifty more alleged members of a $1,000,000 radio liquor ring.

Said to have been operated by the alleged ring, the Dory Patricia was captured today by coast guard cutter 922 in the fog banks off Sandy Hook and Gravesend after a shot had been fired over her bow.

Boatswain Arthur Cravens, commanding the cutter, reported seizure of liquor, valued at $25,000, and arrest of three members of the Patricia's crew, one of whom gave the name of Captain Thomas Duffy.

In Manhattan, two warehouses were raided and huge quantities of imported liquor seized.

Much Liquor Nabbed
At one warehouse, government raiders confiscated 80 cases of liquors, champagne, cordial, and whiskies and sixty barrels of Canadian ale.

At another warehouse they seized 357 cases containing an equally wide assortment of imported alcoholic beverages.

According to assistant United States Attorney J. B. Wegman, in Brooklyn, the raids and arrests followed a secret indictment returned by the federal grand jury in Brooklyn Thursday.

The gang, Wegman stated, has been doing a $1,000,000 business using radio to communicate with rum runners off the New York and New Jersey coasts and to direct them where and when to land their cargoes of contraband.

A number of the radio sending and receiving stations operated by the ring were said to be located in Manhattan, others in Brooklyn and still others at strategic points in New Jersey.

NEAR TOLEDO, OHIO

Motorman Trapped In Wreckage Burns To Death Before Body
Is Reached

(International News Service)
TOLEDO, O., Nov. 15.—One man was burned to death and 17 other persons were injured, eight seriously, when an east bound Lake Shore electric street car collided with a freight car today two miles east of the city limits.

Both cars caught afire immediately after the crash and were completely destroyed.

Will Thurston, the motorman on the freight car, who was trapped in the wreckage, prayed while survivors fought vainly to reach him. His prayers could be heard above the roaring of the flames.

The body was burned beyond recognition before it was recovered. A heavy fog rolling in from Lake Erie was blamed for the crash, which occurred at a point known as Hayes siding. All of the injured were employees of the railway.

Cars Take Fire

Among those injured in the crash were: Russell Baker of Fremont, O., motorman of the other trolley; Miles Ferguson of Fremont, a conductor; S. Poorman of Fremont, and Charles Hanville of Fremont.

Both cars burst into flames immediately after the crash. They were completely burned to their tracks. Passengers of the trolleys fled pell-mell as the blaze whipped over the cars.

Thurston, wedged in the wreckage of his vestibule, was unable to escape and the flames gained such rapid headway that assistance could not be rendered.

Officials of the Railway company were reluctant to discuss the cause of the accident. It was learned, however, that the two trolleys were going along about 15 miles an hour when they crashed head-on. A dense fog was hanging over the area and it was considered probable that the vision of the motorman of the two cars was obscured.

Legion Poppies Sold On Streets

Two Hundred High School
Girls Are In Charge
Of Sales

ENTIRE CITY IS BEING SOLICITED

Annual sale of poppies under the auspices of Perry S. Gaston Post No. 343, American Legion, to secure funds with which to carry on the welfare work of the post for former service men and their dependents, got under way early this morning, under most auspicious circumstances, with more than two hundred girls of the Senior and Junior High Schools of the city, invading every part of the city for the purpose of selling the poppies.

With ideal weather conditions and the largest group of girls in the history of the sale of poppies engaged in this very laudable enterprise, Attorney Clarence A. Patterson, general chairman of the Poppy Drive, was confident that a nice sum of money would be realized for the welfare work of the post.

Twenty thousand poppies made by disabled veterans of the World War were secured for the poppy day sale and the manner in which they were being disposed of throughout the morning and early this afternoon, indicated that all would be disposed of.

In Entire City
The various teams of girls worked throughout the morning in districts allotted to them in various sections of the city, securing their supplies and being checked out from the Legion Home, the official headquarters by the committees in charge.

A number of teams were out at seven o'clock, catching the people arriving in the downtown business district, while the balance of the teams were started on their work at eight o'clock.

The various teams of girls were under the supervision of Miss Marjorie Rhodes, Miss Evea Coulter and Miss Edith Dodds.

At noon the girls were served with

Hoover Plan To Aid Employment

Principal Features Of Relief
Program Are Brought Into Notice

LOANS TO FARMERS
WILL BE INCLUDED

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The principal features of the Hoover administration's legislative program for the relief of the Army of unemployed will include special loans to farmers in drought-stricken states, a virtual doubling of appropriations for public buildings and increased appropriations for federal-aid roads, it was learned today on high authority.

A special bill, authorizing a $60,000,000 fund for loans to farmers in drought-stricken areas for the purchase of feed, seed, fertilizer and gasoline, is being prepared by experts in the agriculture department. It will be introduced as soon as congress convenes.

An effort will be made to double the federal building program. Thus far, congress has authorized appropriation of $363,000,000 for federal buildings in the states over a five-year period. This program resulted in the expenditure of $77,027,000 from the adjournment of congress in June to November 1, this year, leaving about $285,973,000 available for expenditure in the eight months from November 1 to June 30.

Ask Enormous Sum

The administration will ask congress to make approximately $200,000,000 available for the construction of public buildings during the coming year. This program would require merely the appropriation of funds already authorized in the $363,000,000 building program. It would speed up construction of projects already approved but not yet built and might even admit of new projects.

The administration also plans a sharp increase in federal-aid road appropriations. The road program during the current fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1930 will total $125,000,000, of which but $84,000,000 has been appropriated for the eight months from November 1 to June 30.

By Sabres

(International News Service)
MADRID, Nov. 15.—Sporadic rioting broke out in Madrid today, despite strenuous police precautions to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's serious disorders, in which four were killed and scores wounded.

Today's riots started as demonstrations of protest against the action of police in charging yesterday's crowds with drawn sabres. Similar tactics were used by the police again, however, and several persons were injured by police sabres.

The building trades proclaimed a strike of protest, and fears were felt of a general strike of all industrial and manual workers might result. The Central University was closed because of the disorderly attitude of the students.

Free New Castle Man At Extortion Hearing

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—Michael Massaro, of New Castle, who had been held in connection with a mysterious "purple hand" extortion plot gained his freedom in police court today when a startling development—the receipt of a threatening letter with Massaro in jail here—was reported by the intended victim of the plot.

Thomas Walsh, to whom threatening letters had been addressed recently, told the court that he had just received another missive, also signed by the "purple hand." Massaro was promptly discharged and the investigation into the plot renewed.

The New Castle man was arrested by city detectives James Stratton and William Bauer a few days ago in the main postoffice building here. Stratton and Bauer had been posted at the postoffice to watch for suspicious characters and reported they had found Massaro loitering in the corridor.

The charges against Massaro were formally quashed on the grounds of insufficient evidence.

Walsh reported that he has received several letters, each threatening with death unless he contributed the sum of $500 to the "purple hand." The latest letter received by Walsh—which served to set Massaro free—was turned over to the detective bureau for investigation.

GRAND JURY TO HEAR DISPUTE

(International News Service)
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 15.—Flatly denying allegations made by district attorney Buron Fitts, that she had admitted taking $35,000 of Clara Bow's property, Miss Daisy Devoe, former private secretary of the screen star, commented today on the latest phase of her dispute with Miss Bow.

"I made no confession," she declared. "I was asked a lot of questions and the questions that I refused to answer were answered by an investigator from the district attorney."

Fitts last night announced that Miss Devoe had made a 30 page admission of an alleged theft of $35,000 from the motion picture actress.

Both Miss Bow and her former secretary are to be subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury Tuesday when the district attorney's report on the dispute will be placed before that body.

"My office several days ago received a formal request for a criminal complaint against Miss Devoe for embezzlement of money and property belonging to Clara Bow," Fitts said.

"The matter was referred directly to Blaine Matthews, chief investigator and after several days investigation Miss Devoe made a 30 page admission of the theft of $35,000 of Clara Bow's money, a great deal of which was found in her possession."

Nathan Freedman, attorney for Miss Devoe, announced that he was preparing to file three law suits on behalf of his client, one of them is to be directed against the district attorney's office, he said.

Check For $500 From Philadelphia Auto
Club

$3200 FOR CAPTURE OF IRENE DAGUE

Conference Will Be Held Monday To Discuss Disposition Of Reward

County Commissioners this morning received a check for $500 from the Keystone Automobile Club of Philadelphia, the amount offered by that club for the capture of Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague, convicted slayers of Corporal Brady Paul, of the State Highway police. With the receipt of the $500 all of the reward money offered for the capture of the murderers has now been paid into the hands of the county commissioners.

The several amounts paid in addition to the Philadelphia club's $500, are as follows: New Castle News Company, $1,000; County Commissioners, $1,000; J. S. Crowl, $100; County Commissioner, T. J. McCullough, $200; County Commissioner, P. O. Elder, $100; New Castle Motor Club, $100; Pittsburgh Motor Club, $200. This makes a total of $3,200.

Officers To Share Reward

Sheriff Charles H. Wright of Phoenix, Arizona, has put in a claim for the reward for the officers who took part in the capture of Irene and Dague. The names sent to the county commissioners are: Oscar Roberts, J. G. Carter, Leo Sindus, George Pruitt, Al Rhodes and H. B. Coor. There is also a question in the mind of Sheriff Wright as to whether or not Mrs. Lee Wright, widow of an officer shot during the capture, should not receive a share of the reward.

Commissioners have made no definite decision as to the request of Sheriff Wright. There are several matters connected with the case, which they desire to discuss with their Attorney, John P. Lockhart, before making a distribution of the money. A meeting will be held on next Monday at which all the different claims will be discussed. As soon as it has been definitely determined who is entitled to the money, it will be paid over.

Youths Endanger Lives Of People

Charged With Pulling Trolley
Poles Away From Wires
On East Side Line

Four youths, ranging in age from 15 to 18 years, will be given a hearing this afternoon at four o'clock before Mayor William H. Gillespie on charges of pulling the trolley poles from the trolley wires of cars operating on the Crotan line last night. They deny that they were responsible for this practice, which endangered the lives of the passengers on the street cars.

The arresting officers were Officers M. J. Young and John Moore.

The young men arrested were Louis Ferrara, Tony Penato, Charles Ventrella and Dave Barker. They were released on forfeits of $5 each for their appearance before the mayor this morning. They appeared and because they denied any participation in the trouble the hearing was postponed until four o'clock this afternoon, when the arresting officers could be present to testify.

There's a bunch of lasses upon the streets, with poppies held in their arms, and their selling talk is a flock of smiles, that only add to their charms. And the poppies they sell are a crimson shade, and the customers, you and me, and the weather is up where they ordered it, balmy and sixty-three. Now the cost is small or the cost is great, whichever you may decide and when you pay for your little bloom, just see that your hands aren't tied. For the dimes and dollars the poppies bring all aid in a worthy cause, so when you are stopped by a poppy girl, just pause a bit, friend, just pause.

Pittsburgh Man Admits Slaying

Louis A. Zambarno, 29, Pittsburgh, Confesses To Brutal Killing

LURED VICTIM TO LONELY SPOT

(International News Service)
NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 15.—Louis A. Zambarno, 29, of Pittsburgh, today confessed in detail how he lured Vito Ascoli, also of Pittsburgh, to Pine Creek, near here, shot him in the head, wrapped his body in an oil soaked blanket and then set fire to it, according to Sheriff L. B. Snyder of Wetzel county, who arrested him.

With Zambarno's confession to Sheriff Snyder early this morning identification of the partially burned and charred body was made. West Virginia authorities were unable to identify the remains which were discovered more than a week ago.

Snyder said Zambarno confessed to him that he had lured Ascoli to Pine Creek on the excuse that he wanted to show him the site of a proposed moonshine plant which he expected to set in operation. He murdered the man, he confessed, because Ascoli had "something on me" which he feared the victim would tell police.

Slayer Arrested.
At the request of West Virginia police, Pittsburgh officers surrounded Zambarno's home here and arrested him. He was removed to West Virginia where for several days when questioned by Snyder he denied all knowledge of the crime.

Snyder discovered that Zambarno and Ascoli had been leading together several weeks at a speakeasy here. Both left their usual meeting places early this morning. Zambarno returned to Pittsburgh alone several weeks later.

The prisoner refused to reveal what blackmailing evidence Ascoli held against him. Police were able to learn little of the business in which Ascoli was reported to have been engaged.

Believing that frequenters at the speakeasy could identify the charred body, Pittsburgh police raided it yesterday at the request of West Virginia authorities. Two men were arrested and fined and given over to local homicide authorities. They were released today after Zambarno's confession identified the victim.

You're the JUDGE

The Dumps Lakes Coal and Iron Company wrote to the North Star Fuel company offering a low figure on a certain grade of coal and asking to be favored with an order for 500 to 600 tons. The letter also requested the North Star company to wire acceptance collect on receipt. Two days later the North Star replied ordering 400 tons, but meanwhile the Dumps Coal and Iron company had sold the coal, therefore it was not able to fill the order and so wrote to the North Star firm.

The gentlemen of the North Star felt that they had lost a real bargain and that they were entitled to some damages for the loss thus sustained. They filed suit.

Commonwealth Has Petition Filed To Halt Power Company

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The commonwealth of Pennsylvania today filed a petition in district supreme court for permission to intervene in the suit instituted by the Clarion River Power Co., Johnstown, Pa., for an injunction to restrain the Federal Power commission from holding hearings or determining its claim net investment for its property, the commission disputed $6,000,000 of the company's announced price of $11,000,000.

Believing the company intends to test the constitutionality of the federal water power act Pennsylvania joined the national popular government league has also asked authority to intervene and support the Power Act. The league claimed the act is in jeopardy since attorney general Mitchell gave an opinion last September 22 to the effect the Appalachian Power Co. might be given a "minor" license to develop a power project on the new river, in Virginia, without confirming with the provision of the act which stipulate power companies must report the actual cost of plant construction with the commission. The government uses the original cost to determine the price it must pay to take over the property in case of emergency.

Answers to Foregoing Questions
1. Answer to feat of magic.

How magic is done.
FIG 1. COIN GLASS. FIG 2. HAT GLASS. COIN.

You need a hat (preferably a derby) one glass and two coins, tell the audience you are going to toss a coin through the hat into the glass. Take the hat in both hands, have one coin in your hand, and without the knowledge of your onlookers, press it against the side of the hat (fig. 1) and place the hat and coin on the rim of the glass. The coin about three-fourths over the rim of the glass (fig. 2). The weight of the hat will keep the coin from dropping into the glass. Be sure to put the coin on the side away from the audience. Back up a few paces and take the duplicate coin from your pocket saying, "Hocus Pocus, I command you to go through the hat." The impact of the coin when it lands in the hat will jar the other coin, causing it to drop into the glass.

STAR LORE

A SPECTROSCOPE AND THE MAPS IT MAKES

By Arthur Dev. Carpenter
Any given chemical substance that cannot be further broken up into other distinct chemical materials is called an element. When the element is heated to the state of a luminous gas it always displays the same identical spectral map when its light is passed through a spectroscopic. In other words, every element always produces its own individual spectrum photograph by which is may be known if seen in the chemical or physical laboratory or in a distant star. If the radiant beams of an element are passed through a cooler gas before reaching the spectroscopic, the cooler gas converts the element's bright lines into dark ones—absorption lines they are called.

TOLL OF COLDS

AN ANNUAL wage loss of $2,000,000,000 because of the common cold is a tremendous burden for the nation to carry, but the victim is concerned less with this economic loss than with the unpleasantness, the depression approaching acute melancholia, the discomfort and the annoyance of this endemic malady which afflicts the human race.

Few persons escape at least one cold in the course of a year. In most cases a complete cure is effected within a few days of infection. Sometimes serious complications develop, often resulting fatally. So it is not surprising that everybody is interested in cold cures and the progress being made by those scientists who are seeking the cause, preventive and cure for the common cold.

Recent conclusions reached by these researches are that the active causative agent is a submicroscopic virus and that colds are the result of infection and not merely the product of chemical changes in the body. These discoveries hold forth the promise of a vaccine that will build up an immunity to colds in the human body.

Until an effective vaccine has been developed the individual must observe the commandments to avoid drafts, wet feet, sneezing victims and that run-down condition which usually ends in a cold or grippe.

CHRISTMAS CLUBS AND THEIR MILLIONS

Within the next few weeks more than $600,000,000 will be distributed to the members of the Christmas Clubs throughout the country. More than eight thousand banking institutions in the United States foster these organizations, and they are now credited with having a total membership of 11,000,000.

It is estimated that one-third of the money paid to the members is used in the purchase of holiday gifts. It would probably be nearer the truth to say that at least half of it will go to the retail trade between now and Christmas. The remainder is usually allotted to taxes, travel, interest on mortgages and other obligations, and a part is saved or placed in permanent investments. All in all these clubs are wholesome signs of the times. They have taught people to save in order that they may spend.

No less an authority than Calvin Coolidge has pointed out the vast gulf between thrift and parsimony. He has always advocated saving, but he is careful to remind us that this does not mean hoarding. Dead money is of no use to anyone. But when we lay by a certain amount each week during the year in order that we may have money to spend for the holiday season we are doing a sensible and a useful thing. That is the chief idea back of the Christmas Clubs—to have money when you need it, and to be able to purchase goods when they are being offered at attractive prices.

The distribution of the money just before the holidays gives a sense of ease and well being to the recipients, making it possible to have that job of painting or papering done without any undue strain on the family pocketbook and permitting the purchase of gifts for relatives and friends.

This year the dividends of the Christmas Clubs will play a more important part than usual. Putting money into circulation—such a modest total as $600,000,000—will stimulate trade and be for the good of everybody.

PRICE OF CARELESSNESS

"As safe as in your own home" has ceased to be a phrase of reassurance. In its literal sense it denotes a situation not without many hazards and dangers.

Approximately 24,000 persons are killed in their own homes in the United States in a year. Until a year ago this death rate kept pace with the automobile mortality rate.

More children of school age are hurt or killed in their homes than on the street and school grounds. Falls and burns are chiefly responsible for this large toll.

Man is a more or less graceful animal, yet a third of the accidents that befall him while in the "security of his castle" are due to falls. As commonplace and domestic a thing as the bathtub is an instrument of death and injury. Young and old alike are also constantly falling down stairs, over toys and other articles left on the floor, and off chairs, step-ladders and boxes.

Though accidents seem to pursue humanity like the proverbial jinx, most of those that occur within the home are easily avoidable. A little care to prevent fires, asphyxiation, electrocution and burns, the placing of matches and poisons beyond the reach of children, the lighting of dark stairways, care against slips in the bathtub and from ladders and chairs while reaching high places would greatly reduce the home accident rate.

Eventually, the public may regard traffic accidents with as little concern as it shows the high accident rate in the home. Man quickly becomes accustomed to the dangers that beset him.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL

In his Thanksgiving proclamation President Hoover called upon the people of the United States "to remember that many of our people are in need and suffering from causes beyond their control," and suggests that "a proper celebration of the day should include that we make sure that every person in the community, young and old, shall have cause to give thanks for our institutions and for the neighborly sentiments of our people."

Former President Coolidge has referred to the annual membership roll call of the American Red Cross which began in most communities on Armistice Day. There are now more than 4,000,000 members. There must be many more to provide the funds needed for the varied relief work the Red Cross carries on. For one dollar, any person may become a member and thus participate indirectly in its work.

Wherever fire, flood, hurricane, earthquake or major disaster occurs, the Red Cross performs its errands of mercy and assistance. It does educational work, too, in teaching home nursing and hygiene classes in many communities. Support of this organization should be regarded as a duty and a privilege.

The Wickesham commission's report holds forth one certainty. It will not satisfy everybody.

Since we usually refer to the earth in the feminine gender the uncertainty as to her age is not surprising.

One thing to be said in favor of the younger generation: It doesn't stay awake nights worrying because the old folks are going wrong.

There's a difference. Lot's wife looked back and turned into a pillar of salt, while the modern wife looks back and turns into a tree.

SQUAKTOWN, Pa.—Leon Mux-jup, 42, invited his neighbor, Joe Galvancan, 72, over to his house for a game of checkers. The game was played in the basement, and all was well until a keg that Joe was sitting on exploded. The blast ruined Com-mo Galvancan's pants and burned him severely. Investigating police and firemen found that the keg was charred, full of alcohol, and had an electric wire running through it to hasten the "aging" of its contents. Too much current was believed to have caused the explosion.

LOOK FOR LIFE!

Are there times when Life seems too slow to be endured? Times when you hold your Life up to the light and turn it in your hands and pick it to pieces—and sigh—and decide it isn't so much after all? Times when you grow impatient waiting for Life to be as rich as it ought to be?

Then you ought to know about the Professor and the Lump of Coal. I sat next to him one evening and we talked about this and that, about the movies and China and football and newspapers and a little white cat and Winnie the Pooh and Paul Robeson and I asked the professor what he's been doing recently in his laboratory.

When I asked that question, a flame leaped up within him and glowed behind his eyes and he seemed more alive than any man I'd ever seen. He said:

"I've been trying to prove that Life can live one hundred years in a lump of coal. I took a piece of Pennsylvania coal and baked it for a day in a temperature of 300 degrees centigrade, to kill all the Life on its outside. Then I put it in a bottle of sterile water and left it there for six weeks. At the end of that time the culture was as clear and transparent as ever. There was no Life on that coal."

"I took the lump of coal from the culture and ground it to pieces. Then I spread it on agar-agar, put it in a sterile container and waited. And when I came to look at it again, low forms of Life were growing there, all of them the same, and all I am certain, from the center of a piece of coal in which they'd been locked for at least one hundred millions years."

"That's what the professor had been doing and that's what had put the glow in his eyes and the flame in his heart. He'd been looking for Life—and he'd found it—in a place where few of us would think of seeking it. He'd sealed for one hundred million years in a hard little lump of coal. He'd discovered for himself something beautiful and strange—that Life that was imprisoned in the morning of the world can endure and wait and be patient till a Wise Man comes its way to release it."

And he taught me that if a speck of primitive Life, buried so long in a lump of coal, can wait one hundred million years in a lump of coal, then surely a Human Being can wait just a day or two, maybe a year, for his own Life to release itself and spread its strong wings and be beautiful again.

To the man upon the engine. Life's a long heavy grade. It's a gamble to the gambler. To the merchant life is trade. Life is but a long vacation.

To the man who loves his work. Life's an everlasting effort. To the shun duty, to the shirk. To the earnest Christian worker. Life's a story ever new. Life is what we try to make it. Brother, what is life to you?

A young man told me yesterday that he had broken his engagement. "I could stand for one pet dog," he explained, "but when she got two, I quit. I concluded there was no room for me."

"I'm afraid of my wife," the timid citizen complained to his lawyer. "Why, she's even threatened to attack me with an ax."

"Huh! Don't worry? Did you ever see a woman try to chop a stick of wood?"

Don't waste too much sympathy on the farmer. He can get started these frosty mornings without heating a kettle of water to pour on old Dobbin.

Any town is a bum town to the man whose promise to pay isn't worth a darn.

Today's Storyteller. A Central American republic was in the midst of a revolution.

As a phase of it two armed bodies were approaching each other so that a bird was about to be caught between them.

The commander of the third party was in a predicament. On the left government troops, on the right insurgents.

"General, why do you not give the order to fire?" asked the aide dashing up on a lame mule.

"I would like to," responded the general, "but Sapristo! I can't remember which side were fighting for."

Things must be all right between Germany and England again. At least the Prince of Wales trusted his hide to the great German plane Do-x for a ride.

Try, Try Again. Tommy returned from school with a perplexed brow.

"What's the matter, sonny?" asked his father.

"I can't get a certain sum right, returned the boy, "I wish you'd help me with it, dad!"

His father shook his head. "Can't my boy," he replied, "it wouldn't be right."

"I don't suppose it would," Tommy replied, "but you might have a try!"

EVANSTON, Ill.—Evanston's more or less well known penchant for restricting the caperings of its canines needs encouragement, Alderman Albert Hobbs believes. Accordingly he submitted to the council a measure which would bar housewives from taking their dogs along when they go on shopping tours to grocery and food stores.

Any girl of today who is curious to know what broomsticks look like need only to give some of the legs on exhibition the once-over.

Selections For Hall Of Fame Classed With Some Rejected

Inadequate Basis Of Judgment Charged By Some Americans Who Point To Fact That Rejected Geniuses Already Have Place In History

While the four names that have been added to the Hall of Fame are recognized as representing good judgment on the part of the committee of election, their failure on previous balloting is a subject of comment. It is also a matter of surprise to some Americans that among those who have been rejected are many to whom history already has given immortal fame. Those chosen are Monroe, Whitman, Whistler and Maury.

Observing that William Penn "failed" of election by a majority of the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH maintains that he "has been secure in his claims to greatness for more than two centuries," and that the man of peace, the great colonizer, can wait for a while certain of future election to the formal honor he now misses. That paper also remarks: "This honor to Whistler and Whitman helps atone for the neglect and ridicule allotted to them through most of their lives." The Post-Dispatch makes the comment on the selection of Commander Maury: "He was a naval officer, of the Confederacy in the war years, who did pioneer work in hydrographic and meteorologic research. Ocean travel and cable service owe a debt to his ocean weather charts. He helped found the Naval Observatory. He investigated temperatures and currents of the marine depths. He invented the electric torpedo."

Pointing out that "our Hall of Fame is to honor those to whom such honor is due," the MANCHESTER UNION feels that "it may never fully discharge that function," stating as to the results: "Even though there might be those who would be inclined to discount election to the Hall of Fame, still the shrine that we have had in this country plenty of men and women whose names might well be added to the lists. Some of them will be in time; some of them probably will never achieve election. And this is no reflection on the Board of Electors, as another board with an entirely different personnel would have accepted certain other names and rejected still others. Human beings depend after all on what human beings for a recognition of their attainments in a world sense. And we may not be any blinder than most nations when it comes to the matter of recognizing the truly great. There are not so many such at the best."

"Looking over the list of candidates failing of election in the 1930 poll," says the SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE, "one is reminded that Henry Thoreau and Sidney Lanier appeal to their own select followings as figures in the American literary Valhalla. Then there is Noah Webster, who, despite his disregard for plot, wrote a book which made his name a household word for a hundred years. In another field we find the names of Stonewall Jackson and Philip Sheridan far down in the score, although high military authority sustains the popular imagination in placing these two men among the great American captains. However, fame is neither dependent on nor assured by election to the Hall. The college of electors is doing a service in endeavoring to make this particular roll of immortals representative of as many kinds of worth-while Americans as possible."

The electors who registered their choice," declares the SYRACUSE HERALD, "should have anticipated issuing a new and revised definition of the meaning of the word 'wonder' and at the same time told a wonderful world how they discovered, in Whitman's case, the factors, influences and recorded achievements that make men—or women—nationally and enduringly famous in the public vision." The Herald admits that "more than two-thirds of the electors have decided that Whitman's literary and out-caste Sam Adams' service to the Revolutionary cause; but holds that it is a heritage of eccentric philosophy and of verse glorified by his cult chiefly because it plays havoc with rhythm and rhyme and lacks the musical soul of all the really great poetry in our language."

Disagreeing with estimates of this type, the BIRMINGHAM NEWS asserts: "Walt Whitman, a finer poet by long odds than several whose tablets have appeared for years in the Hall of Fame, at last has been admitted by the College of Electors. It is rather singular that after 30 years of efforts by a few of his worshippers in the college, the Good Gray Poet received at the recent election not one single vote more than the required 45 of the 106 electors representing the states."

Yet this belated action of the college in Whitman's case is scarcely worth quibbling over in view of the fact that Thomas Paine still remains outside of the exclusive list of immort

Ranchers War On '30 Rustlers

Ride Motor Trucks Instead Of Ponies Of Old

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 15.—Activities of cattle rustlers, who ride motor trucks instead of ponies, have become so widespread in Oklahoma that farmers have become aroused over the situation.

Unlike the old rustlers who drove their stolen animals over fenceless prairies to escape the rancher, the rustlers of today load the animals into trucks and by morning are more than 100 miles from the scene of the night's operations.

Hundreds of cattle stolen from ranchers in the southeastern Oklahoma counties the past few weeks have been disposed of at Texas markets, across Red river, or at some point in this state, reports indicate.

Local officials, apparently baffled by the modern operation methods of the rustlers, have appealed to the state for aid.

So acute has the situation grown in four counties that State Livestock Inspection Superintendent Sam P. Nelson has decided to conduct a personal survey to determine the best method of apprehending persons responsible for the thefts.

Since cattle are no longer branded in that section of the state because pastures are now fenced in the rustlers are unable to disguise old markings and place the animals on other ranges as they once did.

They now take the animals direct to the market centers where they are sold to slaughter houses.

MASSACRE BARES LOVE STORY

Young Wife Whose Husband And Child Were Slain In Brazilian Wilds To Carry On As Missionary, Mother Says

By Central Press
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 15.—"Love never will die. It's the same in the wilderness as in the palatial homes of wealth and comfort. The more love is surrounded by hardships and suffering, the stronger it should become."

It was back in January, 1923, that Ethel Canary, pretty graduate of Central high school here, confided these words to girl friends just before departing as a missionary to the half-savage tribes of Brazil, to be separated two years from her fiancé, Arthur Thompson Tylee, Amherst graduate, whose home was in Worcester, Mass.

The rules of the game in missionary life are that lovers may not write until each has been in service at separated stations for at least one year—a particularly adamant regulation when the two are destined for duty in leper-stricken districts. And it was to the dangers and hardships of such an assignment that Miss Canary and her Amherst sweetheart were to be exposed. They married in 1925.

Primitive Life
Their love withstood the supreme test in the practically unexplored wilds of the Amazon jungles, where they lived in a nondescript hut of logs, saplings and grass roof, and thrived almost in primitive style.

Five years of happy married life 500 miles from the nearest railroad station, 2,000 miles inland from the coast of Brazil, in a settlement of half a dozen rude huts at the Junuera mission—two months from mail communication back home.

The recent massacre of Tylee, the baby girl, Marian, and the nurse, Mildred Kratz, is told in a cable received here by Mrs. M. E. Canary, mother of Mrs. Tylee.

War-painted Nhamiquara Indians murdered the three in a brutal fashion, and cruelly attacked Mrs. Tylee, who is reported recovering "somewhere" in that barbarous country.

"And love of him and love of duty will help my daughter to carry on in that dreadful valley of the Amazon," Mrs. Canary, the mother, declares.

She shook her head in the negative when asked if the wounded daughter would return to the United States.

"No, she will stay and work there indefinitely," she said.

"I know," she added, "because I have two other daughters who are missionaries in China."

They are Mrs. Cora Hicks and Miss Elizabeth Canary, who are at Peking.

Born in U. S.
The murdered baby was born in Worcester, Mass., two and a half years ago, when Mr. and Mrs. Tylee were visiting his relatives.

Their romance dates back eight years, when Tylee and Miss Canary were students at the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. They had volunteered to go to the leper field in

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR TYLEE

Brazil, one of the most dreaded regions in the foreign mission activities.

A honeymoon trip of ten weeks by canoe, mule and ox cart followed their marriage five years ago, as they blazed a trail through the tropical jungles to the pioneer settlement they built in primitive fashion—Junuera Mission.

And their home was constructed on the bank of a tributary of the historical Amazon, 500 miles northwest of Cuyaba, province of Matto Grosso.

Tylee and his family were accompanied back to the mission, after the baby was born in Worcester, by a missionary nurse, Miss Kratz, whose home was in Wheaton, Ill.

It is the white-haired mother of Mrs. Tylee who pays tribute to the slain missionary. Blessed with Spartan-like courage, she went about her household duties after receipt of news of the tragedy. A thousand questions milled through her mind as she awaited details of the massacre and burning of the Junuera Mission settlement. She knows that it takes two months for a letter from the South American wilds to reach Memphis, and that telegraphic service is proportionately slow.

Poisoned Arrows

"Ethel wrote me that the Indian warriors always went armed to the teeth with six and eight-foot bows and arrows, and some of the arrows dipped in poison," Mrs. Tylee says.

"I wonder if that is how Arthur and that poor little baby met their death? And I wonder why God saw fit to take them at this time when He has helped them over so many hardships. Ethel has plenty of faith and courage, but she has always been rather weak physically. She has always leaned so heavily on Arthur and he was so devoted and thoughtful of her."

"Frequently Ethel and Arthur were actually hungry. Provisions had to be ordered six months ahead. On one occasion soldiers got hold of the provisions en route and ate them. They told me at one time they had to eat leaves to stay their hunger."

Two Defendants Named In Suit

Rachael Samuels Asks $8,050
From Penn-Ohio Co. And Howe Corporation

Rachael Samuels has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against the Pennsylvania-Ohio coach lines and George J. Howe Company in which she asks for $8,050, as a result of injuries sustained in an accident at the corner of Beaver and North streets.

It is alleged that plaintiff was a passenger on a Pennsylvania-Ohio coach that was being driven south. A truck of the Howe company of Grove City, operated by R. H. Montgomery was being driven west on North street.

The coach and truck came together at the intersection of the two streets. Mrs. Samuels was thrown forward and severely injured about the head and shoulders and hips. She claims that as a result of the accident she was laid up for some time, put to large expense, and was out the wages she would have been receiving had she not been injured.

Negligence on the part of the drivers of the coach and truck is alleged.

Copper Ball Placed On Christian Church

Passersby at the Public Square today watched with interest as the large copper ball was placed on top of the steeple at the First Christian church. This was a replacement of the old wooden ball that has graced the top of the steeple so many years.

There was no ceremony to mark the event but in the interior of the ball was placed a copy of The New Castle News of November 3, which contained an account of the dedication of the church and the Diamond jubilee, as well as a souvenir program of the occasion.

In addition to the ball which now shines from the top of the steeple, a weather vane was also placed in position.

Says Auto Insurance Has Not Been Paid

Fred W. McBride Enters Suit
Against Company For $500
For Stolen Auto

Fred W. McBride has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against the American Equitable Insurance Company of New York to collect $500 insurance on his automobile, which was stolen.

In his statement of claim Mr. McBride says that he took out an insurance policy through Chester A. Lewis, agent of Sharon. After Mr. Lewis had been dead on July 5, 1929, he notified the local police and also sent work to Lewis, asking him for blanks to make out his claim.

It is alleged that Lewis did not send the blanks and that no attention has been paid to his demands for the insurance.

Pollans Bros. of Pittsburgh have filed a suit against John A. VanGorder of Ellwood City, in which they claim a balance of $574.01 due for merchandise.

Guild Players Repeat Success

"This Thing Called Love" Is Given Again On Friday Evening

Buttressed by one night's performance, the second and closing night of "This Thing Called Love" saw an even better performance by the players of the Civic Theater Guild in the senior high school. The attendance, meager on Thursday night, showed much improvement Friday night, although it was not what it should have been.

"This Thing Called Love", while not the first offering of the Guild players, was the first time they had attempted to present anything in an auditorium larger than their own little theater on Grant street.

After seeing their offering, one is convinced that there is a serious motive back of the Guild, that they have players who merit more than the attention given amateurs, and that the future should see some other performances.

The proceeds of Friday night accrue to the Christmas fund of the Margaret Henry Home.

WITHELD DECISION
In the case of Frank Ferriani against Louis DeCaprio, Clara Craturio, Mike Craturio and Christine Ferriani on a charge of assault and battery the decision was with held until Monday. The hearing took place in the office of Alderman J. Lee Cooper of East Long avenue.

Two sixteenth century needlework panels were sold at auction in London recently for $20,000.

THE TOWN DOCTOR

"DOCTOR OF TOWNS" SAYS SHOULD MERCHANTS GO TO SCHOOL?

Live wire merchants organizations, who are composed of thinking 1930 business men are sending their salespeople to schools were retail selling is taught. Many organizations are having such schools conducted in their own communities. That is wise, for never has retail selling played such an important part in business.

If merchants of your community are doing such, do not gain the impression that the idea is to teach salespeople how to force more merchandise onto you. That is not the idea at all. The purpose is to teach salespeople to serve you as you want to be served, train them in knowledge of merchandise, and so educate them that when you go to the stores they will be able to tell you how best to get the most out of that which you buy. In other words, a retail sales school is for the purpose of teaching Service. There is a selfish motive of course, and that selfishness is profit; but today's merchant knows that he who profits most is he who serves best; therefore the teaching of Service, in all that the word implies.

Why shouldn't clerks and salespeople go to school? Why shouldn't merchants go to school? All professional people are required to study for years before they are allowed to serve you. The electrician, the plumber, the mason, the barber all have to pass a test to become a "master" in their lines. But to become a storekeeper it appears that all one has to do is open a store; and to become a clerk or salesperson all one has to do is to get behind a counter, or start out with a sample case in hand.

No one knows better than you what it means for a store to have inefficient, uninteresting clerks. You know how often you have ceased to trade at stores because as you say, the clerks are so indifferent to your wants, desires and pleasures.

Thinking merchants recognize that it is you, the customer, who must be suited; Thinking salespeople are beginning to realize that it is you, the customer, who pays their salaries. Both are aware that the day has passed when people had to buy the way the seller wanted to sell them.

For these reasons business people all over the country are striving to learn how to serve you as you wish to be served. If any stores of your community are doing this they deserve your every consideration, and it will pay you in more ways than one to do business with them.

Talk with the salespeople who wait on you. Ask them what they are doing along lines of learning how to please their customers. When you find one that is studying your needs you will be wise if you do all your business with that person.

STORY HOUR TO START IN WEEK

Large Basement Room Is Remodeled At Library For Story Hours

Miss Alice Joyce, children's librarian of the New Castle free public library, announces that the first "story hour" of the season will be conducted at the library on Friday, November 21 at 4 o'clock.

Children of grade schools from north, south, east and west New Castle will gather in the re-modeled room located under the south wing of the library building after school, Friday and they will be told tales of lavish castles, charming princesses and kings, queens and nansongas young princes.

Last winter the weekly story hours were so well attended that there was not enough room in the second floor story room to hold all the youthful listeners.

The new room is large, well equipped, well lighted, well heated and has an outside entrance, on the south side of the building.

Branch Libraries Prove Their Worth

Books Circulating Through Branches More Than Half Of Total Circulation

Book circulation figures of the local free public library and its five branch libraries reported recently by the librarian, Miss Alice Sterling, to the members of the board of library trustees, are in themselves proof that it was a wise move on the part of the board to have established the branch libraries.

The figures show that the circulation of books from the branch libraries is more than half of the total circulation. At the same time, the branches do not detract from the circulation at the main library, for books from the main library are circulating much more than before the branches were established.

South Side branch library, located on South Mill street just a short distance from Long avenue, has been serving the public for 2 1/2 years, according to Miss Sterling. The East Side branch was established 1 1/2 years ago and the Mahoningtown branch office has been serving the Seventh Ward people for a little over 2 years, although library extension work had been done in that locality before the opening of a separate office.

The fact that these branches, located more than a mile from the main library building, are so well patronized, shows that it was a very wise move on the part of the library board.

Local Man, Unassisted; Builds Nice Home Here

Joe Kozel, of R. F. D. No. 7, set out about six years ago to build himself a home, and today it stands finished, the handiwork of a solitary man in middle-age.

The home is complete from top to bottom, or roof to cellar, and Mr. Kozel did it all himself. He is very proud of his "castle" and why shouldn't he be? The structure is half brick and half wood. The bottom of the house is constructed of bricks and the top of wood.

The cellar which is of cement is used for the kitchen. Three small rooms make up the cellar. One is used as a wood shed, one for the kitchen, and the other as a work room. In the small kitchen all the family work goes on, the washing, cooking, mending, etc.

The top floor of the house contains four rooms, two of which are for rest rooms. In the front of the house is a sun parlor. Mr. Kozel has also constructed another big one floor building in which he keeps his animals and does repair work.

Home Made Stove
Another interesting thing made by Mr. Kozel is his stove which rests in the kitchen or cellar. Mr. Kozel completed his stove several days ago for the coming winter. First he gathered bricks and cemented together a square even about 3 feet high and about 6 feet long. This was constructed into a square oven. In the center of the oven he placed iron castings like an ordinary furnace, on the top of the stove he placed an iron plate. In the back of the stove he has cemented a copper boiler which holds about 20 gallons. This is always warm. When wash day comes along Mrs. Kozel just drops her clothes in the boiler. Some of the cooking is also done in this kettle. The chimney has been constructed in such a way that heat enters nearly all the rooms. The stove serves as a furnace. It took Mr. Kozel nearly three days to erect the stove.

The drive way has also been completed with bricks. The owner stated this morning that he started building his "castle" in 1924 and has just completed his home.

The home is fashioned after European architecture.

early for these conditions but we can expect quite a few unusual weather periods during the next few months. I have forecasted the coming winter to be unusually severe but that periods of mild weather will alternate with periods of severe weather; not a winter of continual cold and storms, but one that will be hard on man and beast in central and northern latitudes.

Forecast made thru these bulletins are intended principally as crop-weather averages and are not expected to be correct for each day and locality. The rule for verifying crop-weather forecasts is to take the average of three consecutive days and place the value on the middle day. When, by using this method of verification, these forecasts prove correct or nearly so, no more would be expected of them. In making these forecasts, every position and movement of all the bodies in our solar system, relative to both sun and earth, is used. No effort is made to assign certain results to any certain cause, but the records of past weather are used in a system that has taken over fifty years to complete and whatever results show are given as the forecast without changing in any way. No other weather forecaster, to my knowledge, uses the same or a similar system for making his forecasts.

Real Old Time Dance Hall Adorns Top Floor Of Building Located On Moravia Street

Standing on Moravia street in just as good a condition as it was a half century ago, is one of the most interesting and oldest structures in New Castle. The former dance hall, hotel and department store is the building of the New Castle Feed Store which is a reminder of olden days.

From the third floor down to the cellar the building contains things of interest. On the third floor is the old dance hall used some 35 years or more ago when many old timers of today shared in many good times at this place. On the left of the room is constructed a booth where many drinks of all kinds were served to the "square dancers".

The floor which has been untouched since the last dance was held is in good condition being only a bit rough compared to the dance floors of today. The floor for its years is in good shape. At the front of the room is a small stand or stage known as the "fiddler's stand".

It was the fiddler who furnished the music for the merry makers. Another room used as the kitchen still exists. Here sandwiches and other refreshments were prepared and served through the aid of a small booth.

The second floor interests anyone visiting. Not like the hotels and apartment houses of today with many luxuries, is the old-time hotel on the second floor. Here one can see precisely the old time bed rooms and a kitchen used to prepare the food. In the front of the second floor is located the parlor.

The parlor is small in size and was used for reading purpose and a resting place. The old time "fireplace" still is in existence there. The second floor like the remainder of the building appears in good condition.

The main floor which was used as a department store in yester-years is also in good condition. The building as a whole is a very interesting place to visit but the place that interests one the most is the old time dance hall.

Carpenters Start In "Trailer" Home

Will Tour Florida, Texas,
Louisiana And Other States
During The Winter

When Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Carpenter and family of Crawford avenue drove out of New Castle yesterday afternoon to spend the winter in Florida, they carried with them all the comforts of home, in the shape of a "trailer" attached to their automobile. The "trailer," fresh from the shop of the McClaren Body Works, excited the admiration of friends who gathered to see Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter off.

It is six feet wide, six feet high and twelve feet long, and runs on two wheels, the wheels being on an axle located about the center. Inside, at one end there are two bunks, one above the other and each large enough for two persons. There is a cupboard big enough to hold all the food necessary, a clothes press about two feet wide. At the sides are window seats in which bedding and other articles can be carried. These window seats can be used as chairs for a table which sets in the center. The "trailer" is wired for electric light and is connected with the car battery, while a gasoline stove will be used for cooking.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter and their two children expect to live in the trailer home while on the trip and during their stay in Florida. They expect to tour Texas, Louisiana and other states, and will be gone until next summer.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STREET ALLUS LOOKS THE BEST

"I want to buy a winter coat if I kin ever git across the street," said Mrs. Pearl Curl, today, as she leaned again a lamp post and watched the procession of autos. "I wuz knocked down three times yesterday but I decided to try it again today." I don't know what's to become of our merchants if all the folks who'll be compelled to walk or git along without chauffeurs this winter are knocked down ever' time they try to cross the street to a store. Lots of folks are gittin' to buy ever' thing on one side of the street, an' if it haint no the side they happen to be on they do without. Locomotive engineers have to serve a long, tedious apprenticeship before their entrusted with an engine, an' ever so often they have to have their eyes examined, an' when they git shaky or cockeyed they retired. Their trains are run on their own tracks, an' the roads they cross are safeguarded by fences, an' signs, an' bells, an' watchmen an' gates an' lights, but the streets an' the highways which are owned by "the people" are filled with speedin' automobiles twistin' an' turnin' in ever' direction an' any one of which is powerful enough to bust a concrete bridge abutment. Only about one feller out of ten used to have sense enough to drive a horse an' reckon only one out of fifty is really equipped to be in charge of an auto. Horses wouldn't run into people, or jump in stone quarries, or bump their brains out agin telephone poles. A horse jest flatly refused to be driven into a flock of little school children. Farmer Wes Hanger has been scared clean off the town on the railroad. It haint safe to board at a corner drug store. Right now there's a car stuck half way in the side of Leslie Purviance's home at the corner of Spruce an' Saw Mill avenue. The family read by the head lights. Ever' thug an' cut throat has a purrin' car waitin' fer him. If seven youthful bandits are goin' to break jail a seven-passenger car is waitin' fer em. If an outlaw shoots a cashier there's a roadster an' a blonde hard by to whiz him to safety. But these culprits don't drive no faster in escapin' from justice than the "model citizen" who haint goin' anywhere in particular, or the light truck driver that's goin' after a $15 suit to press. There's a little, nervous, generously priced car that's only got two speeds—thirty-five miles an hour an' a merely tremblin'. An' when I do barely manage to escape gittin' killed by one I ferret entirely what I come downtown fer, or what I intended to git on the other side of the street. The Emporium talks some of openin' fer business at 4 a. m., before the autos fill the streets. Yesterday Mrs. Joe Kite yelled clear across the street to Druggist Artie Small to bring her a pork sandwich an' some aspirin. Any day you kin see folks huddled on the curbs an' lookin' longin'ly across the street at a show window full o' socks, or bacon, or somethin'. If a feller tries to drive a car at a respectable speed he's tooled at, an' sideswiped, an' finally driven into the curb. Even the home is no longer a haven o' safety in this age o' crime, an' the jail while safe an' smelly an' overcrowded, so I don't know where a feller could go to live out his natural life.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

By Central Press
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The apple-selling contingent of Tammany Town's unemployed are not, as a class, prepossessing. Many of them have the appearance of men to whom labor of any kind is repulsive. It's a safe bet that in more prosperous times the hardest work a lot of them did was dodging work.

They buy a box containing 88 apples for $2.50 and sell them for five cents apiece. That's the accepted selling price—the figure at which they all tacitly agreed to dispose of them. And, of course the inevitable had to happen. One of the weak-chinned, watery-eyed brothers, stationed at 42nd Street and Sixth avenue, was selling his apples the other day for four cents. He'd run out the gang and cut the price.

HAVE YOU LEARNINGS?
If so, the following advertisement from the current issue of Billboard may be of tremendous interest to you—may, in fact, change your whole life.

"Five Master Keys—Work like magic in emergencies or prove whether your door or padlocks are burglar proof. Open and test thousands of different locks. Recommended by users in ten different nations. Most wonderful and only keys of their kind. . . . Each key different. Send $1, etc. etc."

A POST UNFILED.
The Great American Cook, according to Ralph Hitz, New York's Big Boss hotel man, has as yet to be discovered. The country, he says, has produced many dishes which deserve place on the honor roll of the world's culinary masterpieces. But it has yet to produce a Great Cook.

"Gastronomy," chirps Ralph, "offers the golden opportunity of a neglected art. If financial return interest the young man, I would not hesitate to wager that the Great American Cook will earn more than the Great American Novelist."

COMPETITION.
But why permit this thing to sink to the level of mere money-grubbing? Surely that cannot be the only incentive. There are numerous lines of endeavor in which the tycoon earns more than the Great American Novelist. Let the Great American Bootlegger suffice as a shining example.

Brother Hitz was probably speaking of both money and glory; and yet, after all, is he right?

Perhaps the greatest cook to breathe the breath of life is the cherry-lipped female, who occasionally invades the kitchen bureau of my home, and to whom I now and then refer as The Duchess.

Accused her of wealth and she could prove an alibi; and, so far as fame goes, she is unknown to, unhonored and unsung by all, save the pale-eyed genius who pens these vibrant syllables.

"Quick! Watson, the bi-carbonate of soda!"
The typewriter is to blame for the fact that America has no nationally famous cook. The typewriter is the greatest foe the kitchen has ever had. If we can ever coax our cooks out of the littry field and back to the waffle iron, it will be our gain.

Yeh, and that goes for a few chambermaids and dishwashers, as well.

IMPREGNABLE G. R. S.
Benjamin De Caceres has hurled an ink pot full of vitriol at George Bernard Shaw and is selling the ink spot for two-an'-a-half a copy.

He doesn't say anything new about the Professional Irishman. Standing by and watching a man hurl verbal tomatoes becomes boring after a time, even if the chap's marksmanship is unerring.

Huneker said all there was to say about Shaw when he described his literary pedigree as—W. S. Gilbert out of Eden.

Jimmy also called Shaw a "terrible fellow" and he added:

"The only way to git rid of a terrible fellow is not to take him seriously, but to call him paradoxical and entertaining; to throw the sand of flattery in his eyes and incidentally blind criticism at the same time."

He goes on then and says:

"But Bernard Shaw has always refused to be cajoled, and as to the sand or the mud of abuse—well, he wears the very stout spectacles of common sense."

And just to think that de Caceres used to pal around with Jim Huneker, drink countless steins of beer with the Old Master, night after night and harken to the wit and wisdom that fell from his lips!

If Huneker were still alive Ben de Caceres would never have written that Shaw-book.

Election Held By V.F.W. Tri-County Council This Week

Arrangements Are Made To Hold Celebration In Sharon In 1931

Members of the Tri-County Council, Veterans of Foreign Wars, composed of representatives of the various V. F. W. posts in Lawrence, Mercer, and Butler counties, held their annual election of officers at a meeting held here this week.

Leslie A. Wooley, Senior Vice Commander of the Harry L. McBride Post of New Castle was elected commander of the council for the ensuing year, with F. G. Bell, of Sharon, Senior Vice Commander, J. B. Murrion of Butler, Junior Vice Commander, A. A. Jones of New Castle, quartermaster and John L. Williams of New Castle, adjutant.

The report on the big Tri-County Armistice Day celebration held here showed that the celebration was the largest yet held in the history of the annual celebrations inaugurated several years ago. The celebration will be held in Sharon next year, in Butler in 1932, and again in New Castle in 1933.

The Tri-County council extended a vote of thanks to General Chairman Louis B. Round for his able assistance in making the celebration so successful. The New Castle News and all other assisting organizations as well as the public were also thanked for their fine co-operation in making the day the complete success it turned out to be.

A number of other business matters pertaining to the future were discussed by the council.

Diogenes had a most difficult task in finding an honest man. If he were to return to the job he would have an equally bad time in locating a lantern. Thus do we progress.—The Fort Worth Record-Telegram.

Ex-Commander Of State Police To Give Himself Up

Thomas J. McLaughlin, Former Troop Commander Alleged Tax Evader

EXPRESSES SELF MUCH SURPRISED

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—Thomas J. McLaughlin, former commander of Troop A, Pennsylvania State police, indicted by the federal grand jury for evading payment of income taxes, today promised United States Marshal J. C. McGregor that he would surrender to federal authorities today or Monday after he has arranged for bond.

Special agents of the intelligence unit of the treasury department issued a warrant for the arrest of the ex-captain yesterday shortly after the jury returned its indictment. He is charged with evading payment of taxes on an income of $133,689.19 between the years of 1924 and 1929, inclusive.

Why I don't know what this means. I thought the whole affair was over when I paid the money government men said I owed as back taxes," McLaughlin said.

Expresses Surprise
Expressing surprise at the action of the jury, McLaughlin declared it was not his intention to evade payment.

He refused to reveal the source of income which government agents and officials at Harrisburg have testified was in excess of an annual salary of $3,000 which he received as Troop A commandant.

"I can explain where the money came from and I will do so when it becomes necessary," he said.

"I guess the whole thing was ignorance or misunderstanding on my part. I didn't think it was necessary to file a return having been under the impression all along that state employees were tax exempt," he added.

McLaughlin came to Pittsburgh today to arrange for bond on his impending on the warrant issued by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

After 25 years of service, McLaughlin resigned from the state police last April.

The indictment also charges him with failing to file income tax returns from the years 1927 to 1929, inclusive.

Pennsy To Start Signaling System

New Automatic Signaling System Will Be Operated Tonight

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—Installed at a cost of $1,700,000, the new signaling system of automatic cab signaling will be thrown into operation tonight by the Pennsylvania railroad on the main line between Pittsburgh and Altoona, officials of the company announced today.

The installation includes the placing of equipment on 360 locomotives of the company. Through use of the system trains as they pass over the rails set the signals automatically in the cabs of trains running behind.

Broken rails or obstructions on the tracks will also be detected by the new signal system. Equipment for the system was developed by the Union Switch and Signal Company of Pittsburgh.

Fog, smoke, snow or other unfavorable weather conditions will not affect the operation of the system, railroad officials said.

Installation was made at the request of the interstate commerce commission in lieu of automatic train control devices.

Jewelry Merchant Robbed By Bandits In Chicago Hotel

Jack Salter, New York Jewelry Merchant Robbed Of $80,000 In Gems

(International News Service) CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Robbed of $80,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry and left bound, gagged and chloroformed in his hotel room, Jack Salter, New York jewelry merchant, today was recovering from effects of the anaesthetic.

Three gunmen forced their way into Salter's room at a downtown hotel and covered the salesman while they scooped up his stock of jewelry and unset diamonds. One thief produced a coil of rope and they bound the salesman to the bed and radiator in his room.

Another bandit produced chloroform, a wad of cotton and strips of adhesive tape.

"For God's sake don't gag me," Salter pleaded.

Ignoring his plea the anaesthetized cotton was forced into his mouth and bound with tape. Salter lost consciousness as they fled with their loot.

After a lapse of two hours other guests in the hotel smelled the chloroform and heard the victim's groans. Police later broke into Salter's room and found him semi-conscious.

Salter is a salesman for his father, Norbert Salter, of 48 W. Forty-Eighth street, New York. He told police his father's firm carried $50,000 insurance on the gems.

B. And O. Making Improvements In Pittsburgh Area

Contracts Awarded For Part Of Program Which Will Cost Over Million

As the first part of improvements on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, calling for a total estimated expenditure of $1,185,000, contracts have been awarded for the construction of second track, revision of main track and extension of passing sidings between Bridge No. 74 at Hayes borough and West Alexander, Pa., a distance of 48 miles.

In this territory, existing sections of double track are to be connected between Bruceton and Finleyville, a distance of about 5 miles, giving double track for a total of 17 miles, and suitable intermediate passing sidings at six new locations. The immediate work calls for the expenditure of $505,000 of the total authorization.

The T. J. Foley Company of Pittsburgh was awarded two contracts on two different sections, and the Empire Construction Company of Baltimore, Md., was awarded contract on a third section.

The second half of the improvements consists of the installation of automatic signals from Glenwood Junction to Gilkeson and insertion of centralized train control from Gilkeson to Wheeling, a distance of 42 miles, at an estimated cost of $680,000.

This latter work has not yet been started.

These improvements are being made to permit of the more efficient operation of Mallet locomotives between Wheeling and Pittsburgh.

PRESENTING THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Today the Chevrolet Motor Company presents the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six, a new model of the six-cylinder car which has enjoyed such wide popularity.

In both the chassis and body of this new six-cylinder Chevrolet you will find expressed, as never before, Chevrolet's well-known policy of progress through constant improvement.

For—without departing from the basic features which have won the enthusiastic approval of over 2,000,000 buyers—Chevrolet has produced a six-cylinder car which represents an entirely new standard of quality, value and refinement in the low-price field.

Your first impression of the new Chevrolet will be one of striking fleetness, grace and beauty. The car is longer, lower and modernly smart. The radiator has been deepened and its appearance enhanced by a curving tie-bar and chrome-plated parabolic headlamps. The long hood lines sweep back unbroken to blend gracefully into the new Fisher bodies. And never was Fisher's fine craftsmanship more evident than in the bodies of the new Chevrolet Six!

Not only are the bodies roomier and more comfortable, but as you study them you will discover many gratifying new features and pleasing refinements—many examples of that painstaking attention to detail which is the basis of true quality.

Mechanically, too, the new Chevrolet Six is a better automobile. The wheelbase is longer. The frame is stronger. The steering is easier. The clutch is more durable. There is a smoother, quieter, easier shifting transmission. In fact, wherever finer materials and more advanced design could add to Chevrolet quality or increase Chevrolet's traditional economy of ownership—improvement has been made. See the new Chevrolet Six—and you will agree that here is the Great American Value!

The Parent Problem

Prepare For Widowhood By Planning With Hubby

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
Head Division Parental Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

You a widow? What a joyful thought! Nevertheless about half the mothers reading this who now are happily living with their husbands will live without them by and by. The chances are about 50-50 that you are going to be a widow.

We kid ourselves along and "choose to run" away from unpleasant ideas. We choose not to think about death of ourselves or our loved ones; therefore not to think much about what we are going to do when one is taken and the other is left, in case we should happen to be the other.

But if we parents are sensible, if we want to make our mutual devotion and affection practical, we shall not neglect to talk over such things freely. Provided we always have been a companionable pair, we shall have so high regard for each other's judgment and self-respect as not to presume to dictate to each other. To do so would betray the mutual confidence we had during all the years built up. But we will be eager to talk over ways for the future care and education of the children.

A few mothers reading this have been financial leaders of the family. More have not been. Some have had little or no experience of the sort. If your husband assumes all financial responsibility, try to persuade him to let you share some of it, so that in the event that you are left alone you will be better fitted to carry on as he would wish to have you do, better able to care for the children.

You and your husband have together built up some savings. He, no doubt, has life insurance, too even if the family must make self-denials to keep it up. Widows never complain about such foresight on the part of their former husbands. Mother, sit down with Dad and talk over what you are going to do with the insurance or other property left in the event you are made a widow. Talk about it as calmly as if you together were planning an outing with the children for next Friday evening.

In case you are left a widow receiving life insurance, there will be calling on you, before the flowers on your husband's grave will have withered, numerous clever salesmen of stocks and bonds and all sorts of things which they will picture as promising you a big fortune quickly. And a lot of you will believe them only to regret it when too late. If you had talked such matters over with your husband when he was alive he would have warned you against them. He might have led you to find ways of carefully investing your money, making it safe, for you and your children. Practically all good business husbands would advise their wives on becoming widows to deposit their available moneys in the bank where they had transacted business, and whether they had often gone for financial advice.

Most mothers who will be widows by and by will find it necessary to earn a living for their families or to supplement the funds available. Now is a good time to prepare. Take good care of your health right now; develop your best skills and talents now so as to be ready at any time to carry on. Once the children grow able to care for themselves, fit yourself to some vocation or profession. Be ready; for at such time as you think not you may be a widow. Live a wife today, as if you were going to be a widow tomorrow. But don't buy any crepe. Wait; the chances are 50-50 you won't need it.

6. George Rogers Clark—The Young Pioneer

IN THE AUTUMN OF 1772 YOUNG GEORGE ROGERS CLARK LEFT HIS FATHER'S VIRGINIA PLANTATION AND MIGRATED, WITH TWO NEGRO SERVANTS, TO THE OHIO VALLEY, WHERE HE SETTLED ON A FINE TRACT OF LAND SOME FORTY MILES DOWN THE RIVER FROM WHEELING.

THE MONTHS THAT FOLLOWED WERE A BUSY TIME FOR THE YOUNG PIONEER. THE TIMBER AND BUSHES WERE CLEARED AWAY FOR FIELDS, AND A ROUGH LOG CABIN ERECTED. THE NEXT SPRING HE PLOWED AMONG THE STUMPS.

OTHER SETTLERS, THE ADVANCE GUARD OF THAT MIGHTY TIDE OF EMIGRATION THAT WAS TO FOLLOW LATER, WERE FILTERING INTO THE OHIO COUNTRY, AND CLARK FOUND HIS SERVICES AS A SURVEYOR GREATLY IN DEMAND.

AS FARM PROSPERED, AND THE NEXT SUMMER HE SAID IN A LETTER TO HIS OLDER BROTHER JONATHAN, "I HAD AN OFFER OF A VERY CONSIDERABLE SUM FOR MY PLACE... I HAVE CORN IN GREAT PLENTY."

Bucknell Given Favorite Ranking Over Presidents In Stadium Battle

DUKES GENEVA ARE BATTLING

By SYDNEY H. LIGES
International News Service Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—Two of Pennsylvania's strongest football teams, from opposite ends of the State, took the field in Pitt stadium today as the Bucknell and Villanova last week and those who entered the game today were badly battered.

Both machines were primed for the battle and anxious to win before the huge Pittsburgh crowd. Clark Hinkle, Bucknell's candidate for All American honors was expected to further demonstrate his claim to the title. Sharing honors with him from the other side was Justin Brumbaugh, a husky stalwart for W. and J. who hails from Springfield.

Grove City vs. Bethany
In another annual hotly contested game at Grove City, a badly injured eleven from Bethany, W. Va., was arrayed against Coach Berry's snappy aggregation of embryo teachers. Coach John Knight calmly led his over optimistic followers with the warning that although Grove City may be a bit below par of the other opponents met in the season, it would hold a tremendous advantage today.

The Groves play a snappy brand of football, studded with swift, sensational runs across the field and resort to the aerial route freely when necessary for a win. The game today was a high-point on the cards of both teams.

In still another popular game in the district, Duquesne awaited the opening whistles in Beaver Falls for a tournament against Geneva College. Both schools have been practicing hard and faithfully all week against freshmen teams using the opponent's plays. The two institutions are fiery rivals and spirit for the game today was at high pitch.

New Plays for Geneva
In a last minute rehearsal, Coach Howard Harster drilled his Geneva charges on new plays to use in the battle. In retaliation, Duquesne prepared to send its strongest players into the field at the opening and give the Covenanters more worry with a dazzling and effective aerial workout.

Not at all in the best of physical condition after its struggle with the Red and Black of Bethany last week, Thiel lined up against a fast eleven from Westminster today. The Westminsterites want to chalk up their fourth win of the season against the Lutherans on the home field.

At Latrobe, the Giant St. Vincent sound was favored to subdue a weak out easier team from Carlisle Medical school. The Catholics have an imposing record to their credit and should have little trouble in the fray today.

Traditional rivals for many years, Indiana and California normal schools climaxed local interest with their game today. Both teams were of about the same strength with almost equal records in the season, and spectators were in store for a steady, thrilling game.

Slippery Rock Confident
Traveling eastward to West Chester, a confident Slippery Rock eleven was primed to take on the W. St. Chester teachers. Slippery Rock has had a completely successful season during which the strongest opponents were easily beaten and followers of the team expected their gridders to repeat today.

Davis-Elkins faced a powerful opponent today in St. Francis on the West Virginia field. The Saints usually make heavy dents in the enemy line and Elkins was prepared to use the forward passing system and winding runs through the ends to gain the goal posts.

Waynesburg's yellow jackets made their annual appearance at Buckhannon to battle with West Virginia Wesleyan today. The Southerners have put in a week of practice for the game. Though Waynesburg has chalked up easy wins against several of its opponents the game today was scheduled to test its greatest strength.

Michigan and Minnesota battling at Ann Arbor, Mich., in their annual clash, struggle for different objects. Unbeaten Michigan wants to clinch the Western conference title by trouncing the Vikings, but Minnesota, already beaten by Northwestern and, therefore, out as a Big Ten title contender, is eager to whip the Wolves and gain possession of the "little brown jug," trophy contested for annually by Michigan and Minnesota. Above are shown Captain Harrison Simrall, Michigan, top; the famous "little brown jug," and Captain Win Brockmeyer, Minnesota, bottom.

Tony Canzoneri Wins Title By Kayoing Singer

Al Singer, Lightweight Champion Goes Down For Count In First Round

BOUT ENDS IN SUDDEN MANNER

By HYPE IGEOE
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Al Singer pitched off the golden lightweight throne as if his heart had been drilled by an elephant gun.

He came tumbling down, his body a grey green in its ghastly whiteness. All the blood seemed to rush from it into Singer's boots.

Two left hooks, superbly timed, won the lightweight crown for Tony Canzoneri in one minute and six seconds at the Garden last night.

The fight itself. It is like trying to write the story of lightning striking. It all came like a blinding flash. One minute and six seconds. The second shortest lightweight championship in ring history.

As they came out at the first bell, Singer, pale and anxious offered a feeble left at Canzoneri's head. It was more of a feeler than a punch. They went into a mixup but did little damage to each other. Singer straightened away and shot a much stiffer left to the head.

Tony ducked and drove hard to the heart, Singer's jaw dropped, either from pain or surprise. Quick as a flash Canzoneri knocked a left to Singer's jaw.

Singer's head went back as if it had been jerked by a spring. As he tottered, Canzoneri, despite what he says himself, hooked another left, flush to the mouth and Singer plunged full length on his face—"Out."

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Tony Canzoneri last night knocked out Al Singer in one minute and six seconds and won the lightweight championship of the world. Singer was on his feet but out of the ring and out of his head when Referee McAvoy tolled the final count. Canzoneri hit Singer with a left hook on the jaw. Al fell on his face, rolled under the ropes and staggered up just as the timekeeper and referee were synchronizing on the downward stroke of 10. Singer got his title from Sammy Mandell, who was batted out in a little over two minutes.

Henry Firpo defeated Tiger Joe West in 10 slow rounds last night at Pittsburgh. Clinching marred the bout. West landed low in the fifth and was warned by Referee Al Grayber. It was the second fight between them, Firpo having won his first decision here.

The American Professional Basketball League will swing into action tonight. "Horse" Guilium, this city, is playing with Toledo. Guilium played basketball with Grove City and Syracuse. There are many former college players in the league.

Automobile races which had been scheduled for Armistice Day at June's Park New Brighton, will take place this afternoon. "Colonel" Hamilton of New Castle is one of the dirt track entries. The real race will be between Bill Chittum, 100-mile dirt track champion, and Buck Ramsey.

Sords Points

Joe Savoldi Best Of Knute Rockne's Two Star Fullbacks

By JACK SORDS
Central Press Sports Artist
They call him these days Jumping Joe, The People's Choice and the Terror of Three Oaks, Mich., but there was a day not so long ago when he was plain Joe Savoldi, a Notre Dame football candidate and a not too good a one at that.

Joe came to Notre Dame with a 200 pounds of brawn, a lightning foot and a yen to play this grid-iron game. But he lacked football training. He had had little or no high school training and that fact looked like an insurmountable barrier. No matter how brawny, fast and eager a variety candidate may be, coaches can waste little time on them teaching them the rudiments of the game. They should know that when they enter college.

Joe, they say, in his early Notre Dame games was so afraid of doing the wrong thing that he usually did it. He found himself with the reserves with little or no chance to become a varsity man.

In the opening 1923 game against Indiana Joe was sent in as one of the "shock troops" on a chance that he might do something. He did. His line plunging, open field galloping and pass snatching was first class as long as he was in the game that day.

However, against Navy the next week he was unimpressive and the Irish coaching staff was as puzzled over him as before.

Then came the Wisconsin game.

Ellwood City Issues Challenge To Play Winner Of Title Game

Toxin Anti-Toxin Is Administered In County Schools

Work Is Being Carried Out In County Districts By Dr. H. C. Harper

Toxin Anti-Toxin which is administered as a preventative of diphtheria, is now being given the pupils of the county schools outside New Castle, under the direction of Dr. H. C. Harper, County Medical Director.

This task is being carried out, following the completion of the annual medical inspection of the pupils, which took place following the opening of school.
Not a single case of diphtheria exists in the county at present, Dr. Harper stated this morning, attributing this fact to the thoroughness with which the work of administering the toxin anti-toxin has been carried out in previous years.

This once dreaded disease has almost been wiped out by preventive measures, and incoming pupils into the schools, and those who have not previously had the treatment are being taken care of at the present time.

Children of pre-school age may also take advantage of the preventive treatment if parents so desire. Arrangements can be made through the school in the immediate neighborhood in which the child lives.

Baptists Confer In First Church

Delegates From Beaver Association Hold Afternoon And Evening Sessions Friday

Delegates from the Beaver Association of the Northern Baptist convention met Friday afternoon and evening in the First Baptist church of this city and a denominational missionary program at home and abroad was presented to the representatives of the seventeen churches present.

Rev. William G. Russell, director of promotion for the Pennsylvania Baptist convention called special attention to the fact that the contribution had been keeping about to standard in spite of the business depression and he attributed this fact to the habit of weekly giving.

Rev. Samuel Bawden, in charge of Baptist settlement work for the criminal tribes of Southern India gave a most interesting talk at both afternoon and evening sessions of his work among these savage tribes. He has devoted more than 25 years to this work and has reclaimed large numbers of low caste Hindus born and trained to lives of crime, training them to earn their living as farmers and by vocational methods.

Miss Elsie Kappen, field worker of the Board of Missionary Co-operation also had an interesting address.
The Women's Missionary society served dinner to the delegates.

Spying On Sports

By WILLIAM RITT
Central Press Sports Editor

Another winter is close at hand and the three unbeatable of football—Notre Dame, Utah and Western Maryland—are still unbeaten.
The situation may be an intolerable one to alumni of rival colleges but there is nothing that can be done about it. No less than 51 football teams have tried to stop the rush of these teams, and all have failed.

Western Maryland has won 23 straight games, Notre Dame has humbled her last 15 rivals and 14 consecutive wins decorate the record of the University of Utah.

Two of these teams have been unbeaten in two seasons, Notre Dame and Western Maryland. Utah hasn't been beaten in three seasons but suffered two ties in 1928.

Notre Dame was last beaten on Saturday, December 3, 1928, the last game of that season, when Southern California humbled the Irish, 27-14. Western Maryland was beaten early in the 1928 season by Maryland. The game, played Saturday, October 20, 1928, resulted in a 13-6 victory for the Free State boys.

Utah was last beaten late in 1927

Francis and Muehlenberg, 1929—Baltimore, Georgetown, St. Thomas, Albright, Temple, St. John of Baltimore, Loyola of Baltimore, Mount St. Mary, St. Francis, Muehlenberg and Maryland, 1930—Baltimore, St. John of Baltimore, Georgetown, Loyola of Baltimore, Marines and John Carroll.

NOTRE DAME: 1929—Indiana, Navy, Wisconsin, Carnegie Tech, Georgia Tech, Drake, Southern California, Northwestern and Army, 1930—Southern Methodist, Navy, Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

UTAH: 1928—Utah Aggies, 1929—Colorado, Colorado Aggies, Brigham Young, Colorado college, Wyoming and Utah Aggies, 1930—Nevada, Wyoming, Brigham Young, Denver, Colorado Aggies and Colorado college.

Notre Dame has still to play this season, Drake, Northwestern, the Army and Southern California. Western Maryland must still face Mount St. Mary, Albright, Muehlenberg and Maryland. Utah must still get by Colorado and Utah Aggies.

Maybe there is a joker hiding for each team in what's left of their schedule, an unlooked for defeat. However, we doubt it.

"Big Hotel Man" Placed In Jail On Check Charge

Man Posing As Texas Hotel Official Gets In Trouble In Pittsburgh

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—C. L. Andrews of Cleveland, O., self-styled "big hotel man from the south," who had been occupying free of charge for the past week the finest rooms in both the Fort Pitt and William Penn hotels here, was lodged today in a very bare and unadorned cell at central police station, charged with passing worthless checks.

Registering at the Fort Pitt hotel early in the week as an official in an exclusive hotel in Texas, Andrews was given the best rooms available and was told to make himself at home. He did—and on the plea that he had lost his baggage enroute was given a stylish wardrobe to boot.

He was dined, feted, honored and practically given the key to the city—for two big days.

Gave Worthless Check.
Then he transferred himself to the William Penn hotel, the same story was told, and Andrews was treated with the same splendor and care. The William Penn management even loaned him a full-dress suit to attend a "party."

But, grown sick of too much glory Andrews asked the Fort Pitt officials to "cash a little check for $10 for him—a Youngstown bank."

A telegram to the bank brought this response: "No such person has an account at this bank."

Andrews' guest suite is now the "finest at the central police station."

ROAMING

With Richards
Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

It's Poppy Day today. The day when all of us should have in our button hole one of those artificial Flanders Poppies, blood red, the symbol of a service that will always be a debt. It is just a reminder of other days, a token that spurs remembrance, a flower that will bloom throughout the year in relief to those who need it because they served where the poppies bloom.

The intrinsic value of one of the poppies is small, a few cents at the most, but built into the poppy is somebody's life that was blasted in its youth, the service of some lad who but for the war might be well and strong today. And the money received from the sale of the poppies goes to alleviate in a small way, some of the suffering and privation of the men who were injured but who are still living.

You should have one. What you pay for it should be decided by what you can afford. You can never pay the full price of the sacrifice of the men who were broken on the wheel of war, and yet no amount is too small if it represents a sincere contribution.

Another thing you might keep in mind, is the roll call of the American Red Cross. A dollar gets you in, and you get twelve months satisfaction out of it. The war is twelve years away, but there is still work to do among unfortunate ex-service men and your dollar to the Red Cross helps do the work.

Our friends the enemy are with us today, being none other than the South High School of Youngstown, O. Of all the places in the district where New Castle plays, the South High field in Youngstown has had the jinx on our fellows. Perhaps today the jinx will be working on our side of the fifty yard line.

Last June Constable Bill Reese had an accident out in the Black Lane. His head hit a tree and for a time he was in the hospital. When he came to, Bill found that some of his bridgework was missing, also his gun and his memory of what happened. Yesterday he was out over the ground and found the teeth about fifteen feet away from where the accident happened, down among the leaves. The gun is still missing.

The last scene of the paving act goes on today, or should, with the opening of North street. The show is ended for 1930, the acts have been on, but the results of them will be pleasant for many years to come.

And it just occurs to this column that the city councilmen have a little appreciation coming to them for the street work that has been done this year. Their usual lot is criticism, and none of us have escaped from handing it out. Now when they have handed you and me and the rest of us a flock of good paving, why not tell them you like it.

They might be surprised if someone told them their work was appreciated, but at the risk of causing them heart failure this column wants to extend Messrs. Gillespie, Burns, Reeves, Genkinger and Treser a nice little vote of thanks.

And our own street doesn't need any repairs either if you think this was merely the tip off to a touch for something.

Business On Upward Trend

President Of National Cash Register Company Says Mental Attitude Aids Depression

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—Advocating to stimulate business and overcome the mental attitude of merchant and buyer is the solution of commerce, F. B. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register Company, said today.

that has carried him into 54 cities. Patterson said he was convinced that business is showing an upward trend.

"Today's depression is entirely a mental attitude," he said. "The merchant fears to purchase stock. Let him go out for business, adventure to bring the buyer to his store and the situation will change."
